As Chief Development Officer of Bon Secours Health System and the CEO for Bon Secours Virginia Foundations, Cindy Reynolds works closely with physicians and nurses, board members, senior executives, and the greater community to lead the Health System's philanthropic activities. Bon Secours Health System, Inc. is a major Catholic health system that spans the Mid-Atlantic from Baltimore, Maryland to St. Petersburg, Florida.

Prior to joining Bon Secours in July 2013, Reynolds held several positions at the University of Virginia Health Foundation, including senior director of development for health care philanthropy. As a key fundraising contributor for the University of Virginia Health System's $3 billion fundraising campaign, Reynolds personally raised $5-10 million per year for several years, recruited and helped train fundraising staff and partnered with health system leadership, including the dean of the school of medicine and CEO of the medical center. Previously, she served as senior director of development for diabetes and neurological programs, and director of development for medical alumni and departmental programs. In addition, Cindy is a certified fundraising executive (CFRE).
